Grammarly is a web and desktop application that helps people write grammatically correct messages and in the end, boosts their productivity. Grammarly was originally developed to have better understanding of grammar checks on mobile applications. In addition to helping people avoid embarrassing mistakes, Grammarly's main job is to speed up the exchange of information between business professionals. In other words, Grammarly is a tool for workers who don't have enough time for proofreading their messages before sending them out into the world wide web. Grammarly is currently available for Windows, macOS, iOS, Android and Chrome. Grammarly uses a smart grammar checker to analyze text for mistakes. If an incorrect phrase is identified by the grammar checker, Grammarly will provide suggestions on how to write the same sentence correctly. The suggestions are correct instances of the correct grammatical rules that are contained in the Grammarly dictionary. Grammarly uses algorithms to automatically detect plagiarism. As soon as plagiarism is detected, it provides immediate alerts so that plagiarizing users can be held accountable without risk of embarrassment or accusations of cheating. Grammarly provides language-learning tools, which can help students learn to speak a new language. Grammarly has a set of lessons and tests to check the progress of a student. As a result, Grammarly can provide test scores, story completion progress and other details related to the student's mastery of a new language. Grammarly is available as an online grammar checker and as a browser extension, which runs on Google Chrome, Mozilla Firefox, Internet Explorer and Microsoft Edge browsers. The online version of Grammarly's grammar checking service can be accessed from any computer or mobile device via web browsers supporting Java Script. In addition, Grammarly is available as a mobile application for iOS-based mobile devices and for Android-based mobile devices. In 2013, Grammarly announced a new release of its grammar checking product focused on business users. Users can now check their messages before they're sent out in a variety of formats, including text messages, instant messages and emails in Outlook, Gmail and Yahoo Mail. Grammarly has been awarded with Verizon's Award for Excellence in Software Innovation in 2014. In the same year , Grammarly was awarded with National Parenting Center's Seal of Approval.
